About This Game

Experience a new perspective with Momentum, a physics based platformer. Choose one of many unlockable balls, and then skillfully maneuver it through 3D labyrinths. Race the clock as you rotate labyrinths and use gravity to your advantage. But be careful, because you could easily lose control. Momentum's zen atmosphere contrasts with its challenging gameplay. The soothing soundtrack and detailed environments combine to create a truly unique, relaxing vibe.

This game is a trip. You have this puzzle game that requires intense concentration, mixed with the music that makes you zone completely out.

When you get down to the gameplay its challenging, I highly recommend a controller. That said, the difficulty makes it super triumphant when you win.

Speedrunners, here is your next mountain to scale. Before you choose to play this game, one thing you need to know, Yes , is difficult to control the ball. Why? I had played this game for a minute and It is very impressive because the physical aspect is really good! You control the ball in the game is same as in our life. The movement of the ball is very responsible to the law of physics and the name Momentum is reasonable to reflect the way of the game.. Well done mechanics with many levels and difficulties.

But absolutely only for patient people, because of the frustration you get when falling down again.

Not for me.. Keyboard controls need a bit of work; a keybinding menu would be nice. I love the aesthetics, everywhere from the calming zen-like music, to the track hanging over the futuristic metropolis below. Where I can get the music?

Anyways, I've only gotten 2 medals ranked above bronze so far. It's a pretty tough game, but can be taken casually, like I have, to beat the game one level at a time. I could totally see speedruns for this game. All it needs is a bigger community.

This game is excellent, overall. Again, controls could be a bit smoother, but I never tried using a gamepad. I would definitely recommend this to a friend. (I am going to go do that now, actually!) I hope it grows to have a sustainable community!. Great little game. The controls take a bit to get used to, but when you have them down it becomes a blast. I'd suggest using a controller, though.
